

Perseid Meteor Shower August 2015

We think we're invulnerable
We think we're invincible
And then little pieces of rock burn in the sky
Like fiery teardrops they disappear.
Here one moment, and then cosmic dust in an instant
We can travel this universe alone
Or traverse it in parallel
Either way, we're here for a moment
On this earthly sphere
Lives gone In a brilliant flash
That one time mattered.